Our unique restoration process includes equipping units with the latest technology that improves each unit's capabilities. Restoring equipment results in significant cost savings as opposed to purchasing new units. Additionally, restored units can be expensed to maintenance budgets instead of new equipment budgets. K&K rebuilds units regardless of the condition, brand, or product. In the end, you have a product that looks like new, functions more efficiently than the original, and has a new product warranty. Contact us today for an estimate to restore and/or retrofit parts to get your equipment working and looking better than new.
